Six-Story Cincinnati Building Collapses

FIVE BELIEVED TO BE TRAPPED IN STRUCTURE

Thirsting Of Water Main Is Believed Cause Of Building Crash

CINCINNATI, O., March 11—A six-story Cincinnati building, owned and occupied by the Western Fixture and Bar Supply company, collapsed today, injuring six persons and trapping five others.

Police said the building folded up into a pile of brick and plaster. A dust cloud which could be seen for a quarter of a mile, was raised.

Police said that Sam Ostrov, 40, the building owner and proprietor of the company, was believed trapped in the structure, along with Wallie Teskin, stockkeeper; Ray Bell, 35, and his son, Delmar Bell, 18, all of Cincinnati. Also believed in the wreckage was Albert Rudd, 45, Covington, Ky.

POLICE said a 20-inch water main broke early today about 50 feet from the intersection of Pearl and Race streets where the building stood.

It was believed that heavy concrete kept water from breaking into the building. Instead the water washed out the ground under the pavement and poured into basements throughout the area.

Police and firemen said they believed the undermining of the building by the water caused its collapse.

Eye-witnesses said the building collapsed into rubble while they watched workmen at the broken water main.

FIRE officials said three men riding in the elevator at the time of the collapse, started tunneling down the elevator shaft.

Another man injured was Joseph Hayes, 35, city water works truck driver. He was treated at an emergency hospital for a possible skull fracture. He was working outside the building when the collapse came.

41 SLOT MACHINES ARE CONFISCATED BY STATE

COLUMBUS, O., March 11—State liquor enforcement chief William Kelch revealed today that the department confiscated a total of 41 slot machines in week-end operations at Middletown, Warren and Girard.

Kelch said a total of 22 places in Warren and Girard was raided. Twelve punchboards were collected in addition to the slot machines.

All the violations, Kelch said, would be cited before the state liquor control board.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Klerman

I hear that when Miss Truman told her dad "I can't sing for a week—doctor's orders" he said "shucks, I couldn't talk from October until after election—Hannegan's orders!"

Margaret expects to sing Sunday night. Meanwhile Republicans kindly will not sneeze in the White House.

But there is no truth to the rumor that her accompanist will be a small, grey-haired man, wearing glasses.

Miss T's revised program will include one of her father's favorites—"Carry Me Back to Old Virginia and 47 other states."

In Moscow, Molotov and Bevin are both celebrating birthdays—that makes it very tough for Gen. Marshall.

The minute he makes a demand they'll chorus—"What do you think this is—your birthday!"

GOP Told U. S. Faces Important Decisions

WASHINGTON, March 11—Senate Republicans weighed a sober admonition from their foreign policy leader today that American aid to Greece may have to be duplicated "all around the world."

The evaluation of the Greek "crisis" was given by Sen. Vandenberg (R) Mich., at an unusual night GOP conference. The senate foreign relations chairman "briefed" his colleagues on the implications of U. S. policy abroad in advance of President Truman's message tomorrow.

Vandenberg carefully refrained from disclosing details of the report Mr. Truman will make personally to both houses of congress at 1 p. m. Wednesday.

GOP leaders scheduled another meeting of the 51 senate Republicans for Friday, at which time Vandenberg will discuss the 250 million dollar loan to Greece and the President's expected request for a 150 million dollar credit to Turkey.

Vandenberg told reporters: "So far as the Greek loan is concerned, I simply indicated my opinion that it is not an isolated phase but may prove to be symbolic of the general policy which may have to be pursued all around the world, inasmuch as the same fundamentals are involved in so many situations."

"I expressed the belief the world problem was being considered as a whole and I expressed the hope that the President will give congress and the country the benefit of the total implications involved."

The "fundamentals" as described by reliable sources are Great Britain's enforced withdrawal from such costly trouble spots as Greece and the resultant likelihood of Soviet expansion of influence. Britain has announced that she must end her support to Greece March 31.

Vandenberg emphasized that U. S. policy in the Middle East "transcends politics and is a question of national policy of the highest and most important degree."

Secretary of Labor Schwelbach warned congress today that passage of legislation to outlaw existing closed shop agreements would create "industrial chaos."

Schwelbach, who testified before the house labor committee, also opposed creation of "super dupe" mediation boards, compulsory arbitration, bans on the check-off and any restriction on industry-wide bargaining.

The labor secretary asserted that union security provisions in existing labor-management agreements are "the heart of the contract" and were "won after long struggles through disputes."

He said that unions would re-

U. S. READY FOR NEW BATTLE ON ATOM CONTROL

UN Council Refers Proposals Atomic Energy Commission Again

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., March 11—The United States is girding today for a hard battle to bring the Baruch atom control and inspection plan in its basic principles safely through the atomic energy commission for the second time.

The United Nations security council, by a unanimous vote, referred it back to the 12-nation body with the added proviso that the commission undertake the following three-fold responsibility:

1. — Continue inquiry into all phases of international atomic control and develop specific proposals.
2. — In due course prepare and submit to the security council a draft treaty or convention embodying all ultimate proposals.
3. — Submit a second report to the security council on atomic energy before the next session of the assembly.

The above course was plotted out in a revised United States resolution placed before the council when ten weeks of debate failed to solve the deadlock which developed over basic provisions of the Baruch plan between Russia and America.

THE ATOMIC energy commission, composed of all members of the security council plus Canada, will be summoned for its (Continued on Page Two)

MERCURY UP AS WEATHERMAN'S SPRING ARRIVES

By International News Service

Weatherman's Spring got off to an amazing start in Ohio today.

The mercury was virtually zooming—registering a climb of 13 degrees in a matter of two hours this morning in Cleveland.

For the first time in nearly a month temperatures were scheduled to rise into the high 40's in the northern part of Ohio and the middle 50's downstate.

Tomorrow was to be even much warmer, with showers shaping up for tomorrow afternoon and night.

"By tomorrow the state will be flooded by warm southern air," Meteorologist C. G. Andrus said. "That will produce a little rain, but that's a nice way to start the Spring season."

The weatherman closed his books on Winter yesterday, although the calendar does not record the start of Spring until March 21.

"It was a fairly mild Winter," Andrus said. "Temperatures averaged 29.2 degrees, or 2.9 above the normal of 27 degrees. Snowfall was 34.5 inches or 4.5 more than the normal 30 inches."

RAIL PRESIDENT GUNMAN VICTIM

Strike-Bound T. P. & W. Boss Shot From Ambush Near Peoria Home

PEORIA, ILL., March 11—Authorities launched a wide-spread manhunt today for the gunman who killed George P. McNear, Jr., president of the Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad near his Peoria home.

McNear was shot late last night from ambush during a power blackout. One bullet struck the 56-year-old railroad official near the heart.

The T. P. & W. line has been strike-bound for 17 months. The dispute is the longest in the history of American railroads.

McNear's death was the third apparently caused by the strike. Two pickets were killed and three wounded at Gridley, Ill., Feb. 6, 1946, in a gun battle along the road's right-of-way.

AIRMAN BLOWN OFF TOP PLANE INTO ATLANTIC

NEW YORK, March 11—Hope was abandoned today for George H. Hart, navigator of a Trans-World airlines plane who fell 19,000 feet into the ocean last night while taking a "sight" on the stars to check his position.

Hart, Sag Harbor, L. I., was blown from the plane when the ship's "astral dome" blew off. The plane was 500 miles off the air base at Gander, N. F.

The plane, a four-motored Constellation, piloted by Capt. D. E. Hamilton, Richmond, Va., was carrying 18 passengers from New York to Paris and Geneva. It was flying at 19,000 feet when the accident occurred.

FIRST TAX CUT IN YEARS VOTED BY ASSEMBLY

Surtax On Unemployment Pay Dropped; New School Bill Proposed

COLUMBUS, O., March 11—Industry was assured today by the Ohio legislature that it will no longer have to pay the wartime surtax on unemployment compensation premiums.

The first tax-reduction bill to pass the general assembly in many years completed its last legislative hurdle when the house unanimously passed, 116-0, the senate-approved Reiners bill to end the tax as of the beginning of this year.

The bill now needs only the formality of being sent for certain approval to the governor's desk. It vied for the legislative spotlight with Governor Herbert's impending half-billion dollar budget, which he will submit in person to a joint legislative session tomorrow night, and a brand-new bill to provide pay increases for Ohio's 40,000 school teachers.

THE LATTER measure, sponsored by the entire Cincinnati delegation would provide $14,500,000 in each of the years 1946 and 1947 for salary increases only.

The bill is intended as a substitute for the Daniels-Cramer school foundation bill already recommended for passage by the senate education committee. The Daniels-Cramer bill would increase school foundation payments from 59 millions in 1946 to about 85 millions a year.

WHEAT PRICES SOAR AGAIN ON CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, March 11—July wheat soared the allowable 10-cent limit today, duplicating yesterday's upturn, on continued broad buying.

March wheat opened 1/8c higher while other wheat futures were from 2 1/4 to 5 1/8c higher. Turnover in the July future was so heavy that the price covered a range of about 6 1/2c. The future started from 3 1/2 to 10c higher than yesterday's close.

Corn and oats started uneven in active trading. Corn and oats were 1/4c down to 1c up, following yesterday's limit gains in some futures.

March wheat opened today at $2.74; May $2.63-$2.64; July $2.37 1/2 to $2.43 1/2; September $2.20 to $2.31.

MARKET STILL SLOW

NEW YORK, March 11—The stock market was depressed today for the fourth straight session. Losses were smaller than those incurred in the previous three days, and some issues showed signs of hardening.

The Canadian Army Sets Up 'Operation Igloo'

ONLY THE TOPS OF TENTS AND IGLOOS are visible at the experimental station of the Canadian Army Signal Corps near Churchill. The shelters are all inter-connected with a maze of warren-like tunnels through which the men are able to move from one place to another with a minimum of exposure to the elements. Soviet observers were invited to visit the station after charging a large base was being built there.

Russia Seen Trying To Aid Chinese Communists

MOSCOW, March 11—The possibility arose today that Russia may seek allied intervention in China, at least in a diplomatic way, to prevent China's nationalist government forces from suppressing the Communist movement in the Far East.

In an article throwing new light on the demand by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov for inclusion of China on the big four conference agenda, the government newspaper Izvestia charged that the Kuomintang regime of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek is a "reactionary dictatorship."

Izvestia alleged that the Nanking government was ousting "democratic" elements from the Chinese regime and inciting civil war.

Asserting that the political situation in China had "deteriorated considerably" since the big three declaration on China in Moscow during December, 1945, Izvestia declared that the state of affairs in China necessitates immediate checking on the extent to which the big three "decision" is being carried out.

MOST important feature of the Izvestia article is the implication that the Soviet government interprets the big three declaration of 1945 as empowering the United States, Britain and Russia with responsibility for establishing political unification in China, ending the civil war and creating a more democratic structure under leadership of a national government.

If this implication is correct, it is a much stronger interpretation of the intent of the big three declaration than the U. S. government envisaged at the time or considers warranted at present.

American delegation sources state that the 1945 agreement was viewed by the U. S. as a declaration of principles whereby the three foreign ministers expressed their agreement as to the need for a unified and democratic China under a national government. They agreed also on broad participation by democratic elements in all branches of government as well as for cessation of civil strife.

It was pointed out, however, that nothing was said in the agreement about the three powers assuming the right to intervene in Chinese internal affairs to impose such changes.

The government said withdrawal of the notice which Lewis sent out then terminating the government-union agreement is (Continued on Page Two)

CIVILIANS FLEE PARAGUAY CITY HELD BY REBELS

ASUNCION, Paraguay, March 11—Civilians fled the rebel-held city of Concepcion today following a warning of the Paraguayan government that it may be bombed before nightfall.

Concepcion is under the control of a mutinous infantry division which rebelled against the government of President Higinio Morinigo. All other Paraguayan troops remain loyal to the government, despite appeals over the revolutionists' radio for them to join the rebellion.

ERA DOG FOUND FREE OF RABIES

12 Other Canines Watched In Aftermath Of Child Being Bitten

Columbus laboratory examination of the head of the 13th dog which County Dog Warden Harry Riffle said had "associated" with an allegedly rabid dog at the village of Era disclosed that the animal had not suffered from rabies.

This was announced Tuesday by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway county health commissioner who said the dog warden exhumed the body of the 13th dog and took its head to the state laboratory Monday afternoon.

Six other Era dogs were awaiting execution at the hands of Warden Riffle, and another six canines were in custody of their Era owners, Tuesday, and the owners had orders from the dog warden to keep the animals penned for 90 days and to watch for symptoms of rabies.

It all resulted when the pet dog of the William Fowler family on March 2 bit 6-year-old Margaret Fowler on her leg. A couple of days afterward that dog died. Its head was examined at the Columbus laboratory and (Continued on Page Two)

CUBAN PLOT IS NIPPED BY RAID HERALD STATES

MIAMI, FLA., March 11—The Miami Herald said today that seizure of two planes by customs in Venice, Fla., over the weekend "broke up a plot to start a revolution in Cuba."

In a story by staff writer H. Stuart Morrison, the newspaper said: "The two planes were seized in Venice, Fla., gassed and ready to take off for a destination which United States customs officials declined to reveal."

"There were a P-38 and an S-50, and the seizure was made following discovery of a huge cache of arms and ammunition in Gulfport, Miss., and seizure of two tank landing craft in New Orleans."

INFORMAL TALK ON CHINA SAID FAVORED BY U. S.

Chinese Declare They Will Not Agree To Big Four Study Of Problems

MOSCOW, March 11—The big four council of foreign ministers engaged upon a series of vetoes at its second session today, with the United States and Great Britain turning down a Soviet proposal to put the Chinese problem on the agenda.

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov promptly vetoed an American proposal to place limitation of allied occupational troops in Europe on the agenda.

U. S. Secretary of State Marshall had the support of British foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin in his veto of the surprise Russian proposal regarding China with which Molotov inaugurated the historic conference yesterday.

Chinese Ambassador Foo Ping-Sheung conferred separately with French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and U. S. Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith. It was understood that China takes the position she should be represented on the council if the Soviet motion is adopted.

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov is understood to have raised the Chinese issue during the council meeting in New York last December.

Former U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes was said to have agreed then that the matter could be discussed informally at Moscow, thus Marshall anticipated bi-lateral talks outside the council without placing of the issue on the agenda.

Yesterday's surprise move by Molotov at the initial session of the Moscow parley was followed up pointedly today by the government newspaper Izvestia which urged collaboration of the United States, Britain and Russia in a move to effect political unification in China.

WHILE Molotov's move first was interpreted as a maneuver to strengthen Russia's bargaining position at the parley now in session in Moscow, the declarations of Izvestia were seen as a possible attempt to gain diplomatic intervention to prevent the nationalist government in China from suppressing the Communist movement.

The China issue was thrust to the fore as deputies of the foreign ministers resumed work on draft treaties with Germany and Austria, the principal concern of the present conference.

NANKING, March 11—China's foreign minister Wang Shih-Chieh declared bluntly today that his government "will not in any manner agree" to any discussion of the Chinese internal situation at the Moscow big four conference.

Six-Story Cincinnati Building Collapses

FIVE BELIEVED TO BE TRAPPED IN STRUCTURE

Leaking Of Water Main Is Believed Cause Of Building Crash

CINCINNATI, O., March 11—A six-story Cincinnati building, owned and occupied by the Western Fixture and Bar Supply company, collapsed today, injuring six persons and trapping five others.

Police said the building folded up into a pile of brick and plaster. A dust cloud which could be seen for a quarter of a mile, was raised.

Police said that Sam Ostrov, 40, the building owner and proprietor of the company, was believed trapped in the structure, along with Wallie Teskin, stockkeeper; Ray Bell, 35, and his son, Delmar Bell, 18, all of Cincinnati. Also believed in the wreckage was Albert Rudd, 45, Covington, Ky.

GOP Told U. S. Faces Important Decisions

WASHINGTON, March 11—Senate Republicans weighed a sober admonition from their foreign policy leader today that American aid to Greece may have to be duplicated "all around the world."

The evaluation of the Greek "crisis" was given by Sen. Vandenberg (R) Mich., at an unusual night GOP conference. The senate foreign relations chairman "briefed" his colleagues on the implications of U. S. policy abroad in advance of President Truman's message tomorrow.

American delegation sources state that the 1945 agreement was viewed by the U. S. as a declaration of principles whereby the three foreign ministers expressed their agreement as to the need for a unified and democratic China under a national government. They agreed also on broad participation by democratic elements in all branches of government as well as for cessation of civil strife.

It was pointed out, however, that nothing was said in the agreement about the three powers assuming the right to intervene in Chinese internal affairs to impose such changes.

BARBER ADMITS TRYING TO KILL FILIPINO CHIEF

MANILA, March 11—Julio Guillen, 50-year-old barber, was quoted by the police today as insisting that his confessed attempt to assassinate Philippines president Manuel Roxas was planned and tried by him alone.

Nevertheless, the authorities held a former member of the Manila city council, Amado Hernandez, for questioning in connection with last night's explosion of a grenade on a platform where President Roxas was standing after finishing a speech to 10,000 persons.

ERA DOG FOUND FREE OF RABIES

12 Other Canines Watched In Aftermath Of Child Being Bitten

Columbus laboratory examination of the head of the 13th dog which County Dog Warden Harry Riffe said had "associated" with an allegedly rabid dog at the village of Era disclosed that the animal had not suffered from rabies.

This was announced Tuesday by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway county health commissioner who said the dog warden exhumed the body of the 13th dog and took its head to the state laboratory Monday afternoon.

Six other Era dogs were awaiting execution at the hands of Warden Riffe, and another six canines were in custody of their Era owners, Tuesday, and the owners had orders from the dog warden to keep the animals penned for 90 days and to watch for symptoms of rabies.

It all resulted when the pet dog of the William Fowler family on March 2 bit 6-year-old Margaret Fowler on her leg. A couple of days afterward that dog died. Its head was examined at the Columbus laboratory and (Continued on Page Two)

CUBAN PLOT IS NIPPED BY RAID HERALD STATES

MIAMI, FLA., March 11—The Miami Herald said today that seizure of two planes by customs in Venice, Fla., over the weekend "broke up a plot to start a revolution in Cuba."

In a story by staff writer H. Stuart Morrison, the newspaper said: "The two planes were seized in Venice, Fla., gassed and ready to take off for a destination which United States customs officials declined to reveal."

"There were a P-38 and an S-50, and the seizure was made following discovery of a huge cache of arms and ammunition in Gulfport, Miss., and seizure of two tank landing craft in New Orleans."

BRITISH NOTE REJECTED LONDON, March 11—The British foreign office received today a Soviet rejection of Britain's request for an investigation into the undermining of the Hungarian smallholders' party by Soviet occupation forces.

INFORMAL TALK ON CHINA SAID FAVORED BY U. S.

Chinese Declare They Will Not Agree To Big Four Study Of Problems

MOSCOW, March 11—The big four council of foreign ministers engaged upon a series of vetoes at its second session today, with the United States and Great Britain turning down a Soviet proposal to put the Chinese problem on the agenda.

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov promptly vetoed an American proposal to place limitation of allied occupational troops in Europe on the agenda.

U. S. Secretary of State Marshall had the support of British foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin in his veto of the surprise Russian proposal regarding China with which Molotov inaugurated the historic conference yesterday.

Chinese Ambassador Foo Ping-Sheung conferred separately with French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and U. S. Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith. It was understood that China takes the position she should be represented on the council if the Soviet motion is adopted.

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov is understood to have raised the Chinese issue during the council meeting in New York last December.

Former U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes was said to have agreed then that the matter could be discussed informally at Moscow, thus Marshall anticipated bi-lateral talks outside the council without placing of the issue on the agenda.

Yesterday's surprise move by Molotov at the initial session of the Moscow parley was followed up pointedly today by the government newspaper Izvestia which urged collaboration of the United States, Britain and Russia in a move to effect political unification in China.

WHILE Molotov's move first was interpreted as a maneuver to strengthen Russia's bargaining position at the parley now in session in Moscow, the declarations of Izvestia were seen as a possible attempt to gain diplomatic intervention to prevent the nationalist government in China from suppressing the Communist movement.

The China issue was thrust to the fore as deputies of the foreign ministers resumed work on draft treaties with Germany and Austria, the principal concern of the present conference.

NANKING, March 11—China's foreign minister Wang Shih-Chieh declared bluntly today that his government "will not in any manner agree" to any discussion of the Chinese internal situation at the Moscow big four conference.

FIRST TAX CUT IN YEARS VOTED BY ASSEMBLY

Brooks bill would maintain the old schedule of school foundation payments and provide the additional 14 and a half millions for the following purposes only:

1.—A 30 per cent increase for teachers earning less than $2,000 a year—"those who most need extra help," as Sen. Kyle Brooks stated;

2.—A 15 per cent increase for those earning $2,000 to $3,000;

3.—A 10 per cent increase for those earning $3,000 to $4,000; and,

4.—A five per cent increase for those earning over $4,000.

Brooks attacked the Daniels-Cramer bill in a prepared statement which declared that "the present program of the school lobby is an attempt to pay off for academic training rather than for the ability to teach children."

HE TERMED the committee-approved bill "a snare and a delusion" because it provided $2,000 minimum only for those with an A. B. degree and four years of training.

Seventy-eight per cent of the teachers in rural elementary schools, 60 per cent of those in city elementary schools, and 56 per cent of those in exempted village schools would be deprived of the minimum because of this qualification, Brooks contended.

Meanwhile, the Reiners sur-tax bill will save the state's industry about six millions annually in payments to the state's half-billion dollar jobless pay fund. The tax, ranging from .1 to one per cent of pay-rolls for war-expanded industries, yielded 22 millions since its enactment in 1943.

By a 9-1 vote, the senate passed and sent to the house the bill of Sen. Allen Corlett (R-Cleveland) authorizing cities to levy for tree trimming when the trees about public property.

Sen. Evert Addison (R-Columbus) introduced a bill providing penalties for any employee of the state tax department who divulges confidential information of the department.

Cream prices declined 5 cents Tuesday on the Circleville wholesale market. The new prices are 73 cents for premium grade and 70 cents for regular grade. Wholesale price of eggs continues at 37 cents a dozen.

JORDAN FREED ON PROBATION; ARRESTED AGAIN

James Jordan, 30, Portsmouth, changed his plea to guilty, Monday afternoon in Pickaway county common pleas court, under an indictment charging him with burglary.

Judge William D. Radcliff deferred imposition of sentence for five years and ordered Jordan released on probation. Jordan was forthwith taken into custody by Kentucky officials and he will face a parole violation charge in Kentucky. Before appearing in court Jordan had signed a waiver of extradition to Kentucky.

Jordan was allegedly one of three men who burglarized the James D. Butts general store at the village of Fox the night of Sept. 5 when a 500-pound safe containing more than $200 was carried away. Shortly after the robbery sheriffs deputies nabbed Walter L. Roberts, 29, and Wilbur Jeffords, 37, both of Portsmouth, and each is now serving one to 15 years in the Ohio Penitentiary. Several weeks ago Jordan was arrested at Mt. Clemens, Mich. and was transferred to the county jail in Circleville.

COLORED OLEO BATTLE RENEWED IN OHIO SENATE

COLUMBUS, O., March 11—Battle to permit the sale of colored oleomargarine in Ohio—a battle that has been lost in each of the last several legislative sessions—was renewed today before the senate commerce and labor committee.

A non-partisan bill sponsored by Sens. Fred Reiners (R-Cincinnati) and Margaret Mahoney (D-Cleveland) would permit the sale of colored oleo, which housewives now must color themselves in such spotty fashion as they can manage at home.

Dairy lobbies long have fought the bill on the ground that it would harm their butter business.

The committee also turned its attention to two bills to establish a fair employment practices commission as committee hearings speeded the tempo of the 97th general assembly.

The senate highways committee scheduled for hearing a bill to provide a single auto license plate for the years 1948 and 1949.

INFORMAL TALK ON CHINA SAID FAVORED BY U. S.

ed that the Chinese attitude on this question already had drawn the support of the United States, Great Britain and France. He stated:

"The Chinese government previously made it clear in notes to the (big) four foreign ministers that the agenda of the Moscow conference should be strictly confined to the problems of peace settlements for Austria and Germany and that any extension of the agenda must be a matter of prior consultation and agreement."

Earlier today other Chinese government sources professed themselves completely surprised by Molotov's proposal. For the last two months Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's government has conducted a vigorous press and radio campaign and has sent notes to the big four powers in order to forestall such a move.

Thirteen railroad brotherhoods are involved. The workers sought higher wages and shorter working hours among their demands.

McNear carried his long fight against the unions to Washington two weeks ago and demanded more adequate government protection for railroads during labor disputes.

PERRY OFFICERS SEEKING BANDIT, MISSING $30,000

NEW STRAITSVILLE, O., March 11—Perry county Sheriff Clair Butts and his deputies still sought today an unidentified man who escaped with $30,000 in cash from a New Straitsville garage safe.

Sheriff Butts said that the burglar's accomplice, Joseph L. Smith, alias Joseph L. Burk, Cleveland, still refuses to divulge the name of his partner.

Smith was captured when he tripped in a ditch shortly after the holdup. The bandit pair was surprised by Marshal Charles Donley as they ripped off the door of a safe.

Donley and Sheriff Butts concealed themselves in some weeds and engaged in a gun fight with the bandits, when they emerged. Smith was unharmed when arrested, but his accomplice disappeared.

ed that the Chinese attitude on this question already had drawn the support of the United States, Great Britain and France. He stated:

"The Chinese government previously made it clear in notes to the (big) four foreign ministers that the agenda of the Moscow conference should be strictly confined to the problems of peace settlements for Austria and Germany and that any extension of the agenda must be a matter of prior consultation and agreement."

Earlier today other Chinese government sources professed themselves completely surprised by Molotov's proposal. For the last two months Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's government has conducted a vigorous press and radio campaign and has sent notes to the big four powers in order to forestall such a move.

RAIL PRESIDENT GUNMAN VICTIM

the T. P. and W. road in 1926. PRESENT strike against the line was called Oct. 1, 1945. The walkout was a continuation of a dispute dating back to Dec. 9, 1941. The workers walked off their jobs on that date and remained on strike until March, 1942, when the government seized the line.

Thirteen railroad brotherhoods are involved. The workers sought higher wages and shorter working hours among their demands. McNear carried his long fight against the unions to Washington two weeks ago and demanded more adequate government protection for railroads during labor disputes.

CINCINNATI, March 11—Mrs. Ann Slagle, Cincinnati, today charged her husband, Jack, 34, with torturing their five-month-old son, Lionel, by burning the infant's feet with cigarettes.

WAR TAXES CONTINUE

WASHINGTON, March 11—President Truman today signed the bill extending indefinitely all wartime "luxury" taxes except on certain fur-trimmed coats. Taxes on liquor, theater tickets, night club cover charges, and scores of other items will remain at the wartime rate until such time as legislation is passed to alter or abolish them.

"UNBLOCK" your DIGESTIVE TRACT

And Stop Dosing Your Stomach With Soda and Alkalizers

Don't expect to get real relief from headache, sour stomach, gas and bad breath by taking soda and other alkalizers if the true cause of your trouble is constipation.

In this case, your real trouble is not in the stomach at all. But in the intestinal tract where 80% of your food is digested. And when the lower part gets blocked food may fail to digest properly.

What you want for real relief is something to "unblock" your lower intestinal tract. Something to clean it out effectively—help Nature get back on her feet.

Get Carter's Pills right now. Take as directed. They gently and effectively "unblock" your digestive tract. This permits all 6 of Nature's own digestive juices to mix better with your food. You get genuine relief from indigestion so you can feel really good again.

PERRY OFFICERS SEEKING BANDIT, MISSING $30,000

NEW STRAITSVILLE, O., March 11—Perry county Sheriff Clair Butts and his deputies still sought today an unidentified man who escaped with $30,000 in cash from a New Straitsville garage safe.

Sheriff Butts said that the burglar's accomplice, Joseph L. Smith, alias Joseph L. Burk, Cleveland, still refuses to divulge the name of his partner. Smith was captured when he tripped in a ditch shortly after the holdup. The bandit pair was surprised by Marshal Charles Donley as they ripped off the door of a safe.

Donley and Sheriff Butts concealed themselves in some weeds and engaged in a gun fight with the bandits, when they emerged. Smith was unharmed when arrested, but his accomplice disappeared.

Demand For Weed Killer For Farm Use Makes Supply Short In Ohio

When it comes to destroying undesirable weeds, farmers have found the solution — a compound with a long name which is commonly known as 2, 4-D. But there will be a shortage of the compound this year because of its growing popularity. V. H. Davis of the Farm Bureau Cooperative Association, Columbus, reports.

Next to soil erosion, weeds cause the greatest single loss to agriculture — more than $3,000,000,000 annually over the nation — and 2, 4-D has been accepted by farmers as a welcome tool in modern farming, Davis said.

Reports indicate that 2, 4-D in powder form has been found extremely effective when used in pastures as a control for many annual weeds. Further research is underway to establish the value of weed killers containing the substance for control of some perennial weeds against which it has shown promise of being effective.

2, 4-D is a weed killer of the plant-growth-regulant type and is selective in its action, which means that under certain conditions it has the characteristics of killing the undesirable weeds without affecting the desirable growth.

First indications of the killing action of 2, 4-D on weeds usually show up the first week after application. Bending, twisting and splitting are the first signs of an effective kill. These are followed by yellowing of the foliage and eventual death and decomposition of the weeds, roots and all.

Davis pointed out that although 2, 4-D is effective on a wide variety of farm and turf weeds, the time required for killing different kinds of weeds varies from one to four weeks.

TWO TROOP 121 SCOUTS ADVANCE TO NEW RANKS

Two members of Boy Scout troop 121 were advanced at the regular Monday night meeting.

Recognition services were held for John Lamson, who was advanced to second class Scout, and Roy Denham, advanced to the Star rank. Merit badges were presented to Richard Justice for safety and to Denham for safety, woodwork and home repairs. The boys were presented Scouter pins to give their mothers.

Roy Denham served as officer of the day to open the meeting. Richard Justice and Kenneth Weaver were color guards. Scouting game for the meeting was signal touch. This type of game will be played at each meeting to help Scouts use their training. Jim Anderson is game master.

Patrol meeting will be held as follows this week: Cobra, Tuesday, at the home of Dick McIntire; Pine Tree, Tuesday, with Ralph Hoffman; Panther, Friday, with Kenneth Weaver. "One-for-one" contest for all troops starts this week. Each Scout is to try to get one new member with an award going to the troop getting the most new members.

ASHVILLE

Knight Rank will be conferred Wednesday evening at Palmetto Lodge, Ashville, in a meeting to begin at 7:30 p. m.

Miss Anne Shauck spent the week-end in Westerville where she visited Otterbein College which she expects to attend next year.

Village limits were recently extended by action of the village council to include the area west of the village park to Circleville avenue, which marks the east end on Main street. Much of this area is already sub-divided into lots and will be available for residences when building materials become more plentiful.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Burton, Columbus, former Ashville residents, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lillian E., to Thomas M. Fluhart, Columbus. Miss Burton, a graduate of South High and Capital University, is now teaching music at Harpster high school. Mr. Fluhart is employed by the Veterans' Administration.

Ashville Woman's Civic Club members and guests met in the community club room Thursday for their regular monthly session. The business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs.

Rolland Fetheringham, and the group joined in singing "America, the Beautiful". The executive board appointed the following program committee for the year: Mrs. Frank Morrison, chairman, Mrs. Raymond Lindsey, and Mrs. J. E. Courtright. It was decided to make a contribution to the Red Cross. Mrs. Edwin Shane, Circleville, who was presented to the group by Mrs. Paul Cromley, entertained with moving pictures of the Western United States and Canada, taken by Dr. and Mrs. Shane while on a vacation trip several years ago. As the pictures were shown, Mrs. Shane described the scenes and identified them. The pictures were very unusual and beautiful, showing the brilliant colors of Yellowstone Park, the geysers, the Grand Canyon, and beautiful scenery of Canada. Twenty-six members and ten guests were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Gervaise Peters, Delaware, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Courtright and family.

Richard Hudson and Richard Messick were awarded sweaters and JV letters and numerals respectively at the Ohio State basketball banquet.

Harold Partee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Partee who has been stationed on Okinawa for several months, arrived home Saturday on terminal leave. He expects to receive his discharge in a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Gervaise Peters, Delaware, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Courtright and family.

Mrs. Richard Hedges is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Gretchen Srigley and family in Ardmore, Oklahoma.

Why freight rates are going up...

Since 1939, railroad employees have had three general pay raises totaling 52 1/10%, and the prices of fuel, materials and supplies have risen 61 1/10%.

But when the war ended in 1945, the railroads were still hauling freight at rates no higher, and in some cases lower, than when the war began.

Without increased revenues, railroads could not meet these costs and also provide improvements in equipment and facilities—improvements that are essential for the low-cost freight and passenger services which are necessary to America's high standard of living.

Under these circumstances—and almost a year after the last major wage increase—the Interstate Commerce Commission recently approved an average increase in freight rates of 17 1/10%.

Of all the price increases in America

today, few have been so little and so late as that in the price of railroad transportation.

How important are healthy railroads to a prosperous country?

Only when the railroads are financially healthy can they provide the new equipment, improved road beds, and better terminal facilities needed for still better service to you.

The defense of the nation depends upon the continuance of the efficient transportation which served the nation so well in the last war.

The railroads are among the largest employers of labor. They buy over 100,000 different products. They pay big taxes—taxes which are spent not only for public schools, public health, and police and fire protection, but even for highways, airways, airports and inland waterways.

Railroads are America's lifeline—keeping goods flowing among the 48 states day and night in all weather.

They can continue to do this only if there is a reasonable balance between income and outgo. Like yourself, the railroads must make ends meet!

We are publishing this and other advertisements to talk with you at first hand about matters which are important to everybody.

Without increased revenues, railroads could not meet these costs and also provide improvements in equipment and facilities—improvements that are essential for the low-cost freight and passenger services which are necessary to America's high standard of living.

Under these circumstances—and almost a year after the last major wage increase—the Interstate Commerce Commission recently approved an average increase in freight rates of 17 1/10%.

Of all the price increases in America

today, few have been so little and so late as that in the price of railroad transportation.

How important are healthy railroads to a prosperous country?

Only when the railroads are financially healthy can they provide the new equipment, improved road beds, and better terminal facilities needed for still better service to you.

The defense of the nation depends upon the continuance of the efficient transportation which served the nation so well in the last war.

The railroads are among the largest employers of labor. They buy over 100,000 different products. They pay big taxes—taxes which are spent not only for public schools, public health, and police and fire protection, but even for highways, airways, airports and inland waterways.

Railroads are America's lifeline—keeping goods flowing among the 48 states day and night in all weather.

They can continue to do this only if there is a reasonable balance between income and outgo. Like yourself, the railroads must make ends meet!

We are publishing this and other advertisements to talk with you at first hand about matters which are important to everybody.

PEACE IN THE AMERICAS

PRESIDENT TRUMAN took a look at the ruins of ancient civilization in Central America, then flew to Mexico where he talked about Western Hemisphere peace and good will.

"We don't want to be a passing civilization—neither the great Mexican government nor the United States," he said. "We want to continue. That's the reason we want world peace. We have come to the destructive point where we must have world peace or we'll be just like these deserted ruins. We will be a deserted desert."

Mr. Truman's words were simple and logical, sound peace talk for both countries to hear. His aim of having the same good neighborliness between Mexico, this country, Canada and the other 21 countries of South America, should be the aim of all citizens of these countries. Mr. Truman's speeches have one consistent virtue—they are direct and practical with no flowery involutions to confuse the issue. The speech in Mexico might not be oratory, but it had something more important—the call to peace of a hemisphere.

NO MORE SALESMEN?

SOON THERE will be mighty few salesmen. Buying will be by slot machine. The automatic vending machine business has become a half billion dollar industry.

The public has become accustomed to getting its refrigerated drinks, its gum, candy and nuts from conveniently placed machines. More than 15 per cent of the cigarettes used are purchased this way. The juke box has offered restaurant patrons noise and racket for a long time and apparently will continue to do so as 60,000 new ones are said to be turned out daily by five Chicago factories.

Now there is to be automatic selling in grocery and variety stores. A key or coin in a slot beneath the desired item releases it to the customer. Rail, plane and bus tickets are soon to be obtainable by machine. Electric controls will turn out hot frankfurters and grilled hamburger sandwiches.

There will be no waitress, no grocery clerk, no girl behind the cigaret counter. Will there be nobody at all for the poor public to get mad at any more?

Assignment: America . . . by Kenneth L. Dixon

WASHINGTON, March 11 — For several weeks now, Washington lawyers and judges have been spearheading a campaign to permit court inspection of veterans' combat records, when the ex-servicemen are charged with committing a crime.

They believe that, at least in some instances, wartime experiences may be at least partially to blame for their antisocial acts and attitude. If such is found to be the case, after careful study of the record, they feel that certain medical, philosophical and psychiatric treatment may be much more to the point than punishment.

In any event, they feel such records should be taken into consideration in handling the cases.

A Los Angeles lawyer came to town last week with some ammunition for their fight. His name was Samuel W. Yorty, and the story he told of a veteran he had defended on the west coast found a willing listener in Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of the district court, one of the chief spokesmen for the local campaign.

His story interested this correspondent, too, for he spoke of a guy I used to know. Out of deference to the troubles he's already had, I won't identify him—other than to call him "Chuck".

The Rangers will remember him. Darby's Rangers, for Chuck was with them from Dieppe through Africa, Sicily and Italy—with them until that night calamity struck at Cisterna-on-Anzio, cutting them off in an abortive behind-the-line raid, leaving half of them killed and the other half captured.

There are others who would remember him, and well.

The general who decorated that gallant gang of fighting men who made that first suicidal raid on Dieppe would remember, Chuck, a lieutenant then, was one of the lucky ones who came back, after being one of the first Americans to combat German ground troops in the war.

Ralph Ingersoll, who wrote "The Battle is the Payoff," would remember Chuck from Tunisia for he was one of the guys about whom Ralph wrote such glowing praise — the Ranger group who stabbed deepest in the Kasserine pass battle, and then provided a courageous rear-guard to cover their comrades withdrawal.

Former INS war correspondents Dick Tregaskis and Clark Lee would remember Chuck. They mentioned him in news stories, and in his book "Invasion Diary," Dick termed him "the wild man" of one Italian beach-head because of Chuck's fierce forays in a half-track against heavy enemy positions. Tregaskis was wounded later while with Chuck's battalion, and Clark was with them the day before Chuck's capture at Cisterna.

Meanwhile, Chuck had accumulated seven battle stars, additional decorations from ours and allied armies, his captaincy, three wounds, and a recurring case of malaria which he refused to let hospitalize him as long as the Rangers were in combat.

During that short but terrible struggle at Cisterna, he saw nearly 500 of his own comrades slaughtered—and more than that many Germans—with knife, bayonet, grenade, mortar and point-blank rifle fire. Then he was captured.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 11 — What might be called a new intelligentsia is loosely springing up around the country. The smart boys have made such a failure of planning the past few years, they have not been able to offer anything except the same old arguments in the same old words. They are not trying to think in fresh exploratory fields for solutions to the fresh problems of the world, but are wallowing in the old grooves of words such as "Fascist" (a party now extinct or without power), "Communist" (a word without real meaning because there is little Communism in Russia), "Tories" (a nearly ancient term from Britain used by Bill Green), and so on.

Here at a luncheon were an artist, a real estate dealer, a construction engineer, an Army officer, a newspaper man, an advocate of psychic phenomena and some other plain men who long since gave up the groovists and started out to do some thinking for themselves. A composite resume of their questions and answers on current news ran about like this:

Q—Is Russianism likely to conquer the United States (not to use the word Communism)?

A—The business man said it would after the first year of our next depression. He said unfortunately Russianism is the only formidable opposition movement to Christian society today, and at the first sign of failure of Christian society to provide what the people want, it would come over this country. The others did not agree, or were doubtful. The newspaperman said Russianism would never succeed in this country, but that if we came to another depression, some sort of Christian dictatorship or totalitarianism might spring up to meet the demands of the people for retention of their ideals. It would be like Russianism only by depriving the people of individual liberty, as exhibited in freedom of speech, press and religion.

Q—What is Russianism which is masquerading as Communism?

A—It has no affirmative program. It is purely an antagonistic movement. It exists in an inefficient way solely by opposing everything rather than by its own accomplishments. It is not advocated because it has made a better airplane, or better automobile. In accomplishment it has proved itself grossly inferior to capitalism. It is therefore a negative movement actually without a doctrine. Indeed it preaches a lack of idealism to accomplish purely revolutionary ends.

Q—What would the US be like the day after Russianism started?

A—In the first place it will never start, and in the second, who can say what a negative movement would do when pressed with the necessity for affirmative action. It simply has no program.

Q—Has capitalism a chance of survival under this staggering war debt?

A—Capitalism has given human beings

"The Authority on Authorities"

NO REVOKE NECESSARY

"THERE MUST have been a revoke, or possibly a couple of them" is a type of comment often heard by players in a duplicate game as they look at the traveling score slip of a deal on which one particular result seems "cold" and notice that some unbelievable score had come at another table. Ordinarily they try to figure out how it could have happened, then after the play get hold of the people at the table where the unusual outcome was recorded. Usually they find that either brilliant work by one side or unsoundness by the other caused the bizarre development.

East led his club 3, which the K won. North led to the club A, ruffed the 4 with the spade 6 and saw West over-ruff with the Q. The diamond K won and the A was ruffed by the spade 4. North reckoned that West's failure to return a trump indicated he had no more, so ruffed the club 9 with the dummy's last spade and easily took all but one of the remainder with the ruff of a diamond, three high trumps, two heart leads including one ruffed by East and then the last with a trump.

The score slip then showed that one 4-spade contractor got set two tricks. Inquiry showed how that crazy result developed. The club K won the first trick, then declarer tried to set up hearts by taking the A and K, intending to ruff the third. But East ruffed the second heart, led to the diamond K and the heart 9 was ruffed by the spade 6. North scored the club A and led the 4 to ruff with the spade 6, which West over-ruffed. The heart 10 was returned. North ruffed with the spade 8 and was over-ruffed by the 10. East then returned his spade 3, taking out dummy's last trump and assuring the defense a fifth trick with the club 10 over North's 9.

DIET AND HEALTH

Three Ills That Are Caused By a Vitamin Deficiency

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PRACTICALLY the only vitamin deficiency diseases seen in children of the United States with any frequency are rickets, tetany and scurvy. It is a pity, however, that even these occur, for the thing to remember about a vitamin deficiency disease is that nobody need ever have it in these days when vitamins are to be had in so many forms.

Rickets results from a lack of Vitamin D. Vitamin D is formed in the skin when it is exposed to ultra-violet rays from the sun—shine or from a lamp.

Children who grow rapidly are more likely to develop rickets than those who grow slowly. Other things which seem to influence the occurrence of this condition are the type of feeding, the skin color and prematurity. Thus, a breast-fed child is less likely to develop rickets than is the bottle-fed baby. In this regard a blonde child has the edge over a dark-skinned one, and a baby born at normal term is safer from rickets than is the premature infant.

Signs of Rickets

The signs of rickets include softening of the skull bones, enlargement of the bones in the forehead, enlargements where the ribs join the breastbone, and enlargement of the wrists and ankles. Later such things as bow-legs, knock-knees and malformations of the chest may occur.

Factographs

The male gypsy moth is brown and flies actively, while the large white female does not fly. The insect is abundant throughout the temperate zone in the Old World, and often does much damage to fruit, shade and forest trees, particularly in France, Germany and southern Russia.

The Blarney Stone, supposed to endow all who kiss it with the gift of blarney, is nearly 100 feet above ground, in Blarney Castle, near Cork, Ireland. The date 1703, once carved on it, has been obliterated by tourists' lips.

SYNOPSIS

Young Sherry Kent had been looking forward to spending the weekend at the farm of Steve Jett, beloved family friend, and is heartily disappointed when her glamorous sister, Val, discloses their mother, Leda, had phoned Steve they could not make it. To Sherry Steve's farm was the one place where her existence did not seem flat and useless. Leda, widowed when Sherry and Val were small, was engaged in the pursuit of her highly successful business career, while Val was equally busy pursuing pleasure in an effort to mask her heartbreak over the death in action of her fiancé, Rick Colby. When Sherry learns that Leda is dining with Roger Bedloe, vice-president of her firm, and Val with Wade Carrington, her current beau, she decides to go to Steve's even though he isn't expecting her.

CHAPTER THREE

SHERRY STOOD to put on her coat, to lift down her overnight case. She made her way down the aisle as the train slowed to a stop. The wind stung her face as she stepped outside and down onto the station platform. The snow that had been threatening all day had begun to fall. Sherry's heart lifted at its loveliness.

She would take a cab, she decided. No use to phone and put Steve to the trouble of driving in to meet her. But as she crossed the road toward the cab stand, Sherry saw Steve's old station wagon parked at the curb near the corner. There was no mistaking it—"Stephen Jett-Ridge Farm" was lettered on the door. No one was in it, but the motor was running—sure guarantee that Steve wasn't far away and would soon be back.

Sherry smiled a little, climbing into the car. Wouldn't Steve be surprised to find her here, waiting for him? She settled herself comfortably and peered out across the sidewalk, watching for Steve.

"I beg your pardon?" Sherry turned in surprise. A young man on whom she had never laid eyes before had approached from the opposite direction and was standing, one hand on the car door, frowning at her perplexedly.

"Aren't you in the wrong car?" "Why, no," Sherry denied. "It's Steve's car—I saw his name on the door. You must be mistaken."

The young man grinned. And Sherry found herself smiling, too. His was that sort of grin, easing the lean contours of his face, wrinkling his blue eyes deeply at the corners, showing strong white teeth. He was bare-headed and his hair was brown and thick and close-cut. His leather jacket fitted his broad shoulders as easily as though it had grown there.

Still smiling, he explained, "It's Steve's car, all right. And I'm Steve's hired man, Lex Morell. But—who are you?"

"I'm Sherry Kent," she told him. "My mother and sister and I were coming out. Then Mother phoned

Steve and told him we couldn't—"But you came anyway," Lex Morell said, as she paused. "Steve will be glad to see you. He was disappointed when he thought none of you could make it."

"I'll be glad to see him, too," Sherry said, moving over just a little as the big young man climbed beside her. "And I didn't know he had a new hired man."

Although she didn't say so, Sherry was glad of that, too.

Leda Kent, head of the advertising department of the great Crayon Store on State Street, was forty-two years old. She could pass for considerably less in a kindly light—not that the appearance of youth was important to her, except for business reasons. Leda was wise enough to know that in a job like hers it would be fatal if any young impression got around that you were a has-been.

And so the lights in her private office were indirect and flattering. She had a facial every week in the store's excellent beauty salon. Her dark hair was always swirled becomingly atop her proudly held head and her clothes, set off by a still youthfully slender figure, were a good six months ahead of the current fashion.

Leda Kent was not, as a general thing, given to introspection. She hadn't the time for it, nor the inclination. But on this gray Saturday afternoon, she sat at her glass-topped desk, from which all the work had been cleared for half an hour, just thinking. Not really thinking, at that. Leda's thought processes were usually those of an efficient executive, well-controlled and trained to attack the problem at hand, ponder it through shrewdly, and reach a decision. This wasn't that sort of thinking at all. It was rather an emptiness of the mind, into which all sorts of unrelated musings, vague uncertainties and regrets, intruded in an unruly tide, drawing in their wake an unaccustomed mood of depression.

Leda sat there, her brilliant dark eyes, with the almost unnoticeable threading of fine wrinkles at the corners, fixed on space. She knew what had brought about her curious state of mind.

It was the date, November the seventeenth. Tom's birthday.

Strange, how seldom she thought of her husband any more. Although perhaps it was only natural, considering the fact that he had been dead eighteen years. It took some external thing, an old dance tune, resurrected on the radio, a date, bold and black on a calendar pad, to bring him back clearly once more. Tom, with his fine-boned, sensitive face, his fair hair, his curious, hazel-green eyes, so like Sherry's. Tom, who had been unable to cope with life, who had made a failure of all he tried to accomplish.

They had been so young, so very much in love, at the time of their marriage. Leda remembered with a sudden ache in her throat. And there had been nothing to hold them back. They were both orphans, without close ties or family responsibilities. Both had jobs and Tom had a little money saved up. Their chances of lasting happiness had seemed so promising.

And so they were married. They took a small apartment, since Leda intended to go on working. She liked her job in the advertising department of a Loop store, even though it wasn't a very important job. But she soon learned that Tom didn't like his work, that something deeply ingrained in him rebelled against the dullness of office routine. Soon, too, he confided to Leda the purpose for which he was saving every cent he could possibly put aside.

He wanted, above all things, to buy a farm, to live on it, to make it his means of livelihood. It was a dream he had cherished in his heart ever since childhood, when his family had left a farming community in central Illinois to live in the city. Tom had never forgotten the country, the ripple of growing grain in the wind, the smell of new-cut hay and clover, the soft lowing of cattle at twilight.

The thought of living on a farm was new to Leda. But Tom's enthusiasm was infectious, particularly to a young wife with the stardust of newly fulfilled love still in her eyes. And when, a few months after their marriage, Tom's nest egg reached sufficient proportions to serve as a down payment, Leda let herself be persuaded, but not without some qualms.

She gave up her job and went to live with her husband on that awful little farm out in the Fox River valley, the farm on which they'd had such a struggle to keep up the payments. Leda, from the very start, had hated farm life, the drabness, the loneliness, the endless hard work. Tom had seemed to find contentment in it, had actually appeared to enjoy getting up at dawn, stumbling into bed clumsy with weariness at night, spending long hours alone in the fields or working with the animals. It hadn't bothered him that they were barely making ends meet, getting nowhere. He had been happy and at a loss to understand his wife's dissatisfaction.

Leda had thought when the children came, Val scarcely a year after their move to the farm and Sherry two years later, that surely some spark of reviving ambition would be kindled in Tom. With a family to be responsible for, surely he must be willing to give up farming and get a decent job in the city, something with a future, with some promise of increasing income. But it hadn't worked out that way.

Hints on Etiquette

It is a lack of good manners to burst into a conversation without apology or waiting until there is a pause and the talkers give you their attention.

Words of Wisdom

The vanity of human life is like a rivulet, constantly passing away, and yet constantly coming on.—Pope.

Today's Horoscope

You are the type of person who in adversity is spurred on, rather than discouraged. You are an ardent lover, and the bitterest enemy. Never half-way in your work or social life, you are enthusiastic in whatever you undertake. This day is good in regard to business, ambition and new projects. Although an unexpected adverse business development is probable during the next year, some good fortune and happiness are predicted. Make no hasty changes and endeavor to placate those in authority. Born on this date, a child will be fortunate in many ways, in spite of a liability to sudden business changes and worries. The mental faculties will be of a high order and much talent forthcoming.

PEACE IN THE AMERICAS

PRESIDENT TRUMAN took a look at the ruins of ancient civilization in Central America, then flew to Mexico where he talked about Western Hemisphere peace and good will.

"We don't want to be a passing civilization—neither the great Mexican government nor the United States," he said. "We want to continue. That's the reason we want world peace. We have come to the destructive point where we must have world peace or we'll be just like these deserted ruins. We will be a deserted desert."

Mr. Truman's words were simple and logical, sound peace talk for both countries to hear. His aim of having the same good neighborliness between Mexico, this country, Canada and the other 21 countries of South America, should be the aim of all citizens of these countries. Mr. Truman's speeches have one consistent virtue—they are direct and practical with no flowery involutions to confuse the issue. The speech in Mexico might not be oratory, but it had something more important—the call to peace of a hemisphere.

The others did not agree, or were doubtful. The newspaperman said Russianism would never succeed in this country, but that if we came to another depression, some sort of Christian dictatorship or totalitarianism might spring up to meet the demands of the people for retention of their ideals. It would be like Russianism only by depriving the people of individual liberty, as exhibited in freedom of speech, press and religion.

Q—What is Russianism which is masquerading as Communism?

A—It has no affirmative program. It is purely an antagonistic movement. It exists in an inefficient way solely by opposing everything rather than by its own accomplishments. It is not advocated because it has made a better airplane, or better automobile. In accomplishment it has proved itself grossly inferior to capitalism. It is therefore a negative movement actually without a doctrine. Indeed it preaches a lack of idealism to accomplish purely revolutionary ends.

Q—What would the US be like the day after Russianism started?

A—In the first place it will never start, and in the second, who can say what a negative movement would do when pressed with the necessity for affirmative action. It simply has no program.

Q—Has capitalism a chance of survival under this staggering war debt?

A—Capitalism has given human beings

"The Authority on Authorities"

NO REVOKES NECESSARY

"THERE MUST have been a revoke, or possibly a couple of them," is a type of comment often heard by players in a duplicate game as they look at the traveling score slip of a deal on which one particular result seems "cold" and notice that some unbelievable score had come at another table. Ordinarily they try to figure out how it could have happened, then after the play get hold of the people at the table where the unusual outcome was recorded. Usually they find that either brilliant work by one side or unsoundness by the other caused the bizarre development.

East led his club J, which the K won. North led to the club A. Ruffed the 4 with the spade 6 and saw West over-ruff with the Q. The diamond K won and the A was ruffed by the spade 4. North reckoned that West's failure to return a trump indicated he had no more, so ruffed the club 9 with the dummy's last spade and easily took all but one of the remainder with the ruff of a diamond, three high trumps, two heart leads including one ruffed by East and then the last with a trump.

The score slip then showed that one 4-Spade contractor got set two tricks. Inquiry showed how that crazy result developed. The club K won the first trick, then declarer tried to set up hearts by taking the A and K, intending to ruff the third. But East ruffed the second heart, led to the diamond K and the heart 9 was ruffed by the spade J. North scored the club A and led the 4 to ruff with the spade 6, which West over-ruffed. The heart 10 was returned. North ruffed with the spade 8 and was over-ruffed by the 10. East then returned his spade 3, taking out dummy's last trump and assuring the defense a fifth trick with the club 10 over North's 9.

DIET AND HEALTH

Three Ills That Are Caused By a Vitamin Deficiency

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PRACTICALLY the only vitamin deficiency diseases seen in children of the United States with any frequency are rickets, tetany and scurvy. It is a pity, however, that even these occur, for the thing to remember about a vitamin deficiency disease is that no body need ever have it in these days when vitamins are to be had in so many forms.

Rickets results from a lack of Vitamin D. Vitamin D is formed in the skin when it is exposed to ultra-violet rays from the sunshine or from a lamp. Children who grow rapidly are more likely to develop rickets than those who grow slowly. Other things which seem to influence the occurrence of this condition are the type of feeding, the skin color and prematurity. Thus, a breast-fed child is less likely to develop rickets than is the bottle-fed baby. In this regard a blonde child has the edge over a dark-skinned one, and a baby born at normal term is safer from rickets than is the premature infant.

Signs of Rickets

The signs of rickets include softening of the skull bones, enlargement of the bones in the forehead, enlargements where the ribs join the breastbone, and enlargement of the wrists and ankles. Later such things as bow-legs, knock-knees and malformations of the chest may occur.

Unless rickets is severe it does not interfere greatly with the general health although there is evidence that rickets may lead to a lowered resistance to upper respiratory infections. If there is any question as to diagnosis, an X-ray examination may be carried out. Of course, the treatment consists of giving large amounts of Vitamin D as well as the proper diet.

Spasm of Muscles Tetany is a condition in which there is spasm of various muscles and often convulsions. One form of this condition is due to a Vitamin D deficiency. The symptoms often may be brought on by an infection. The diagnosis of tetany may be confirmed by determining the amount of calcium or lime in the blood serum. In tetany the blood calcium is reduced. The treatment consists of giving Vitamin D and calcium.

Scurvy occurs because of a lack of Vitamin C. The symptoms consist of irritability, loss of appetite, fever, swelling near the joints and bleeding of the gums. This condition also is not difficult to diagnose, and it may be prevented by giving the infant orange juice or tomato juice in liberal amounts. Vitamin C or ascorbic acid may also be employed. All these diseases have decreased sharply during the past 20 years and we can do away with them altogether by watchfulness and care to begin the proper foods or vitamins early enough.

SYNOPSIS

Young Sherry Kent had been looking forward to spending the weekend at the farm of Steve Jeffrey, beloved family friend, and is keenly disappointed when her glamorous sister, Val, discloses their mother, Leda, had phoned Steve that she could not make it. To Sherry's farm was the one place where her existence did not seem sad and useless. Leda, widowed when Sherry and Val were small, was engaged in the pursuit of her highly successful business career, while Val was equally busy pursuing pleasure in an effort to make her heartbreak over the death in action of her fiancé, Rick Colby. When Sherry learns that Leda is dining with Roger Bedloe, vice-president of her firm, and Val with Wade Carrington, her current beau, she decides to go to Steve's even though he isn't expecting her.

CHAPTER THREE

SHERRY STOOD to put on her coat, to lift down her overnight case, she made her way down the aisle as the train slowed to a stop. The wind stung her face as she stepped outside and down onto the station platform. The snow that had been threatening all day had begun to fall. Sherry's heart lifted at its loveliness.

She would take a cab, she decided. No use to phone and put Steve to the trouble of driving in to meet her. But as she crossed the road toward the cab stand, Sherry saw Steve's old station wagon parked at the curb near the corner. There was no mistaking it. "Stephen Jeffrey—Ridge Farm" was lettered on the door. No one was in it, but the motor was running—sure guarantee that Steve wasn't far away and would soon be back.

Sherry smiled a little, climbing into the car. Wouldn't Steve be surprised to find her here, waiting for him? She settled herself comfortably and peered out across the sidewalk, watching for Steve.

"I beg your pardon?" Sherry turned in surprise. A young man on whom she had never laid eyes before had approached from the opposite direction and was standing, one hand on the car door, frowning at her perplexedly. "Aren't you in the wrong car?"

"Why, no," Sherry denied. "It's Steve's car, I saw his name on the door. You must be mistaken." The young man grinned, and Sherry found herself smiling, too. His was that sort of grin, easing the lean contours of his face, wrinkling his blue eyes deeply at the corners, showing strong white teeth. He was bare-headed and his hair was brown and thick and close-cut. His leather jacket fitted his broad shoulders as easily as though it had grown there.

Still smiling, he explained, "It's Steve's car, all right. And I'm Steve's hired man, Lex Morell. But—who are you?"

"I'm Sherry Kent," she told him. "My mother and sister and I were coming out. Then Mother phoned

Steve and told him we couldn't—"But you came anyway," Lex Morell said, as she paused. "Steve will be glad to see you. He was disappointed when he thought none of you could make it."

"I'll be glad to see him, too," Sherry said, moving over just a little as the big young man climbed in beside her. "And I didn't know he had a new hired man."

Although she didn't say so, Sherry was glad of that, too.

Leda Kent, head of the advertising department of the great Craven Store on State Street, was forty-two years old. She could pass for considerably less in a kindly light—not that the appearance of youth was important to her, except for business reasons. Leda was wise enough to know that in a job like hers it would be fatal if any impression got around that you were a has-been.

And so the lights in her private office were indirect and flattering. She had a facial every week in the store's excellent beauty salon. Her dark hair was always swirled becomingly atop her proudly held head and her clothes, set off by a still youthfully slender figure, were a good six months ahead of the current fashion.

Leda Kent was not, as a general thing, given to introspection. She hadn't the time for it, nor the inclination. But on this gray Saturday afternoon, she sat at her glass-topped desk, from which all the work had been cleared for half an hour, just thinking. Not really thinking, at that. Leda's thought processes were usually those of an efficient executive, well-controlled and trained to attack the problem at hand, ponder it through shrewdly, and reach a decision. This wasn't that sort of thinking at all. It was rather an aimless, unrelated musings, vague uncertainties and regrets, intruded in an unruly tide, drawing in their wake an unaccustomed mood of depression.

Leda sat there, her brilliant dark eyes, with the almost unnoticeable thrumming of fine wrinkles at the corners, fixed on space. She knew what had brought about her curious state of mind.

It was the date, November the seventeenth. Tom's birthday.

Strange, how seldom she thought of her husband any more. Although perhaps it was only natural, considering the fact that he had been dead eighteen years. It took some external thing, an old dance tune, resurrected on the radio, a date, bold and black on a calendar pad, to bring him back clearly once more. Still, she remembered his sensitive face, his fair hair, his curious, hazel-green eyes, so like Sherry's. Tom, who had been unable to cope with life, who had made a failure of all he tried to accomplish.

They had been so young, so very much in love, at the time of their marriage, Leda remembered with a sudden ache in her throat. And there had been nothing to hold them back. They were both orphans, without close ties or family responsibilities. Both had jobs and Tom had a little money saved up. Their chances of lasting happiness had seemed so promising.

And so they were married. They took a small apartment, since Leda intended to go on working. She liked her job in the advertising department of a Loop store, even though it wasn't a very important job. But she soon learned that Tom didn't like his work, that something deeply ingrained in him rebelled against the dullness of office routine. Soon, too, he confided to Leda the purpose for which he was saving every cent he could possibly put aside.

He wanted, above all things, to buy a farm, to live on it, to make it his means of livelihood. It was a dream he had cherished in his heart ever since childhood, when his family had left a farming community in central Illinois to live in the city. Tom had never forgotten the country, the ripple of growing grain in the wind, the smell of new-cut hay and clover, the soft loving of cattle at twilight.

The thought of living on a farm was new to Leda. But Tom's enthusiasm was infectious, particularly to a young wife with the stardust of newly fulfilled love still in her eyes. And when, a few months after their marriage, Tom's nest egg reached sufficient proportions to serve as a down payment, Leda let herself be persuaded, but not without some qualms.

She gave up her job and went to live with her husband on that awful little farm out in the Fox River valley, the farm on which they'd had such a struggle to keep up the payments. Leda, from the very start, had hated farm life, the drabness, the loneliness, the endless hard work. Tom had seemed to find contentment in it, had actually appeared to enjoy getting up at dawn, stumbling into bed clumy with weariness at night, spending long hours alone in the fields or working with the animals. It hadn't bothered him that they were barely making ends meet, getting nowhere. He had been happy and at a loss to understand his wife's dissatisfaction.

Leda had thought when the children came, Val scarcely a year after their move to the farm and Sherry two years later, that surely some spark of reviving ambition would be kindled in Tom. With a family to be responsible for, surely he must be striving to give up farming and get a decent job in the city, something with a future, with some promise of increasing income. But it hadn't worked out that way.

Assignment: America . . . by Kenneth L. Dixon

WASHINGTON, March 11 —

For several weeks now, Washington lawyers and judges have been spearheading a campaign to permit court inspection of veterans' combat records, when the ex-servicemen are charged with committing a crime.

They believe that, at least in some instances, wartime experiences may be at least partially to blame for their anti-social acts and attitude. If such is found to be the case, after careful study of the record, they feel that certain medical, philosophical and psychiatric treatment may be much more to the point than punishment.

In any event, they feel such records should be taken into consideration in handling the cases.

A Los Angeles lawyer came to town last week with some ammunition for their fight. His name was Samuel W. Yorty, and the story he told of a veteran he had defended on the west coast found a willing listener in Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of the district court, one of the chief spokesmen for the local campaign.

His story interested this correspondent, too, for he spoke of a guy I used to know. Out of deference to the troubles he's already had, I won't identify him—other than to call him "Chuck".

The Rangers will remember him, Darby's Rangers, for Chuck was with them from Dieppe through Africa, Sicily and Italy—with them until that night calamity struck at Cisterna-on-Anzio, cutting them off in an abortive behind-the-line raid, leaving half of them killed and the other half captured.

There are others who would

remember him, and well.

The general who decorated that gallant gang of fighting men who made that first suicidal raid on Dieppe would remember, Chuck, a lieutenant then, was one of the lucky ones who came back, after being one of the first Americans to combat German ground troops in the war.

Ralph Ingersoll, who wrote "The Battle in the Payoff," would remember Chuck from Tunisia for he was one of the guys about whom Ralph wrote such glowing praise — the Ranger group who stabbed deepest in the Kasserine pass battle, and then provided a courageous rear-guard to cover their comrades withdrawal.

Former INS war correspondent Dick Tregaskis and Clark Lee would remember Chuck. They mentioned him in news stories, and in his book "Invasion Diary." Dick termed him "the wild man" of one Italian beach-head because of Chuck's fierce forays in a half-track against heavy enemy positions. Tregaskis was wounded later while with Chuck's battalion, and Clark was with them the day before Chuck's capture at Cisterna.

Meanwhile, Chuck had accumulated seven battle stars, additional decorations from ours and allied armies, his captaincy, three wounds, and a recurring case of malaria which he refused to let hospitalize him as long as the Rangers were in combat.

During that short but terrible struggle at Cisterna, he saw nearly 500 of his own comrades slaughtered—and more than that many Germans—by knife, bayonet, grenade, mortar and point-blank rifle fire. Then he was captured.

Still suffering from malaria, he finally managed to make his escape, fought with the partisans for a period and then reached our lines. Then Chuck came home, taught escape techniques for a while before spending another five months hospitalized with malaria again.

It was his firsthand knowledge of escape technique which got him into trouble, Attorney Yorty said. The Army charged Chuck hadn't gotten proper clearance for information he gave a magazine writer in an interview on that subject. Faced with a general court martial, the Los Angeles lawyer said Chuck was given the chance to resign—providing he would waive all veterans' rights, including disability claims. He took it.

What followed is an old story to many veterans. Lengthy job-hunting, then loss of position after position. Perhaps part of the explanation lay in an Army medical notation which said, in part, "psychoneurosis, battle-induced, moderate". But in any case, before long he was dead-broke and extremely bitter.

Yorty said Chuck was found guilty of two robbery counts, and added that the holdups had been carried out with an unloaded gun.

It was that last line that got me to thinking it's a good thing some of the judges are checking veterans' combat records. Trained and combat-hardened in one of the toughest outfits in all the allied armies, Chuck killed as he had been taught

Luther League Has Regular Meeting In Parish House

Luther League members held their regular monthly meeting Monday evening in the Lutheran parish house.

Miss Mary Beck, president, opened the meeting with the singing of "I Lay My Sins On Jesus" after which Bette Helwage led the group in reading the 42nd Psalm responsively. Following the devotional period Edward Wolf presented the topic "Is there a conflict between science and the Bible?" The topic brought out the fact that only when man can interpret both the Bible and nature perfectly will there cease to be a conflict. The Luther League's adult advisors gave brief talks on the progress made by the newly organized group.

Entertainment was furnished in the presentation of a short pantomime, "Too Many Dates". Those taking part in the pantomime were Joan Wilkinson, Jimmy Bartholomew, Don Cook, Ronald Melvin, and Milton Spangler.

Refreshments were served by Bette Helwage, Rita Martin, Bob Morgan, Ronald Melvin, and Nancy Sensenbrenner.

'Butch' Heiskell Honored At Party

Seventh birthday anniversary of John (Butch) Heiskell was observed Saturday, March 8, at a party given by his mother, Mrs. John Heiskell, in St. Philip's parish house. Young guests enjoyed games and contests during the afternoon, with prizes being presented to Stephen Heeter, Jane Davis, Geoffrey Denham, Penny Young and Linda Lou Smith.

Refreshments were served the guests from a table, centered with a large birthday cake, topped by burning candles. The candles were placed in miniature holders, fashioned to represent elephants, monkeys, lions, and camels. Around the cake was a group of toy animals. Each child had a small cake at his place, which was marked by figures of animals in the various colored frostings.

Among those present for the celebration were, John Troutman, Jack Walters, Geoffrey Denham, Barbara Sieverts, Melody Shea, George Miller, Sharon Wood, Ronnie Warren, Stephen Heeter, Patricia Anderson, Jane Davis, Roger Binkley, Carolyn Bell, Linda Lou Smith, Carolyn Bivens, Penny Young, Carolyn Lynn Heiskell, Francine Heiskell, and Sandra Rhoads and Bobbie Brown, Columbus.

tion of a chapter subtitled, "Tolerance" from the book, "Peace of Mind" written by Joshua Loth Liebman. Next meeting of the club will be Wednesday March 26, in the home of Mrs. W. W. Robinson, route 3.

MIRIAM TURNER TO BE BRIDE OF BEN F. BRINER

Mrs. Mildred F. Turner, Town street, announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Miss Miriam Turner to Benjamin F. Briner, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Briner, Sr., South Pickaway street.

Open church wedding will be an event of Sunday, March 16, at 4:30 p. m. in the Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church, corner Washington and Mill streets. The Rev. James A. Herbst will officiate at the ceremony.

CLUB TO MEET

Ashville garden club members will hold their regular meeting Thursday at 8 p. m. in the community hall. Mrs. Donald H. Watt will give a talk on, "Ohio Association, Its Purpose and Features". Mrs. A. H. Rogers, will discuss, "Garden Calendar Inventory". Members are requested to bring table services for the donation to the hall. Mrs. E. L. Runkle will serve as hostess for the scheduled meeting.

Luther League Has Regular Meeting In Parish House

Luther League members held their regular monthly meeting Monday evening in the Lutheran parish house.

Miss Mary Beck, president, opened the meeting with the singing of "I Lay My Sins On Jesus" after which Bette Helwage led the group in reading the 42nd Psalm responsively. Following the devotional period Edward Wolf presented the topic "Is there a conflict between science and the Bible?" The topic brought out the fact that only when man can interpret both the Bible and nature perfectly will there cease to be a conflict. The Luther League's adult advisors gave brief talks on the progress made by the newly organized group.

Entertainment was furnished in the presentation of a short pantomime, "Too Many Dates". Those taking part in the pantomime were Joan Wilkinson, Jimmy Bartholomew, Don Cook, Ronald Melvin, and Milton Spangler.

Refreshments were served by Bette Helwage, Rita Martin, Bob Morgan, Ronald Melvin, and Nancy Sensenbrenner.

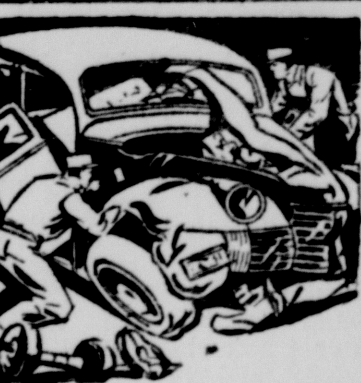

Personals

Miss Lois Elaine Madison was elected president of Neil hall, Ohio State University. She will be home March 14, to spend a ten day Spring vacation with her mother Mrs. Beulah M. Madison, North Scioto street.

Miss Myrtle B. Hedges, Lancaster, was a guest over the weekend, in the home of her brother-in-law, Charles B. Stoffer, West High street.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ullom, Pleasant street, spent the weekend in Steubenville with Mrs. Ullom's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Simpson.

CERTIFIED LEGHORN CHICKS
A few cents more invested in good chicks is money wisely invested. With eggs at 4c apiece it only takes 2 or 3 extra eggs next fall to offset the higher cost of 8 to 12c more for a better pullet now. When you buy chick, you are buying next winter's egg production. Every pullet you buy here is the daughter of an R.O.P. male of 275 to 340 eggs and a daughter or granddaughter of a R.O.P. hen of 250 to 345 eggs. Officially no Pulorum reactors the last two years.

BUCKS DID NOT SET NEW RECORD; TIED OLD MARK

COLUMBUS, March 11 — It was all a mistake—the 3:18 mile relay record credited to Ohio State's Bucks in the Western Conference meet at Illinois Saturday.

Big Nine officials revealed today that the Buck runners—Bob Little, Ed Porter, Harry Cogswell and Mal Whitfield—actually ran the race in 3:18.9. The extra nine-tenths second was lost in transit between official timers and scoring table.

The corrected time tied the existing Big Nine mark, set by Michigan in 1939, rather than setting a new one.

Q — What of the federal debt and its $5 billions annual interest charge?

A — The interest charge is not really $5 billions. This is merely the budget figure. It does not include the taxes the government collects on its bond interest by subjecting the interest payments to taxation, or the interest it pays itself on the bonds it holds. The net annual charge truly may be only half of $5 billions. In any event, all you need to finance and retire this debt is good business. Good business pays the taxes. If this country ever gets to a point where it cannot retire its debt, or meet its interest payments, it can resume the downward path of finance in the Roosevelt administration which allowed government to issue money against its own bonds.

CERTIFIED LEGHORN CHICKS
A few cents more invested in good chicks is money wisely invested. With eggs at 4¢ apiece it only takes 2 or 3 extra eggs next fall to offset the higher cost of 8¢ to 12¢ more for a better pullet now. When you buy chicks, you are buying next winter's egg production. Every pullet you buy here is the daughter of an R.O.P. male of 275 to 340 eggs and a daughter or granddaughter of a R.O.P. hen of 250 to 345 eggs. Officially no Pulorum reactors the last two years.

BUCKS DID NOT SET NEW RECORD; TIED OLD MARK

COLUMBUS, March 11 — It was all a mistake—the 3:18 mile relay record credited to Ohio State's Bucks in the Western Conference meet at Illinois Saturday.

Big Nine officials revealed today that the Buck runners—Bob Little, Ed Porter, Harry Cogswell and Mal Whitfield—actually ran the race in 3:18.9. The extra nine-tenths second was lost in transit between official timers and scoring table.

The corrected time tied the existing Big Nine mark, set by Michigan in 1939, rather than setting a new one.

Q — Then Russianism or Communism has not much chance?

A — It has a chance only to conquer people who do not know it. It has nothing superior to offer. No alive person would fall for it. The world will find other ways. It hopes to conquer us in our first failure, but it is more likely to blow up itself in its own next depression and failure to meet needs of its people. It is always subject to counter revolution despite its despotic efforts to safeguard itself.

Discussion broke up on that note.

I could not help believing when I walked away from this gathering that I had come in contact with a new intelligentsia. I had seen similar evidence of it elsewhere around the country. The smart people these days are the people who have made a success of themselves and their lives in the way they have chosen. Unfettered by the common political phobias of the day, plain people are seeking and finding genuine intelligence.

34 DOGS RUN IN ANNUAL SPRING BIRD DOG TRIAL

Annual Spring trial of the Pickaway County Bird Dog club was held Sunday on the Louis White farm, south of Circleville.

Thirty-four dogs from Ohio and West Virginia were entered and the ideal Spring weather brought out a large attendance. Judges were James C. Talmadge, Jeromesville, and Selby Price, Massillon.

In the all age stake, which attracted 16 entries, Highland Touchstone Dixie, a pointer, owned and handled by John Eschelman, Circleville, was first. Second was Village Commissioner Don, pointer, owned and handled by C. A. Parker, Athens; third, Spook Midmac, setter, owned and handled by M. L. Trabue, Columbus.

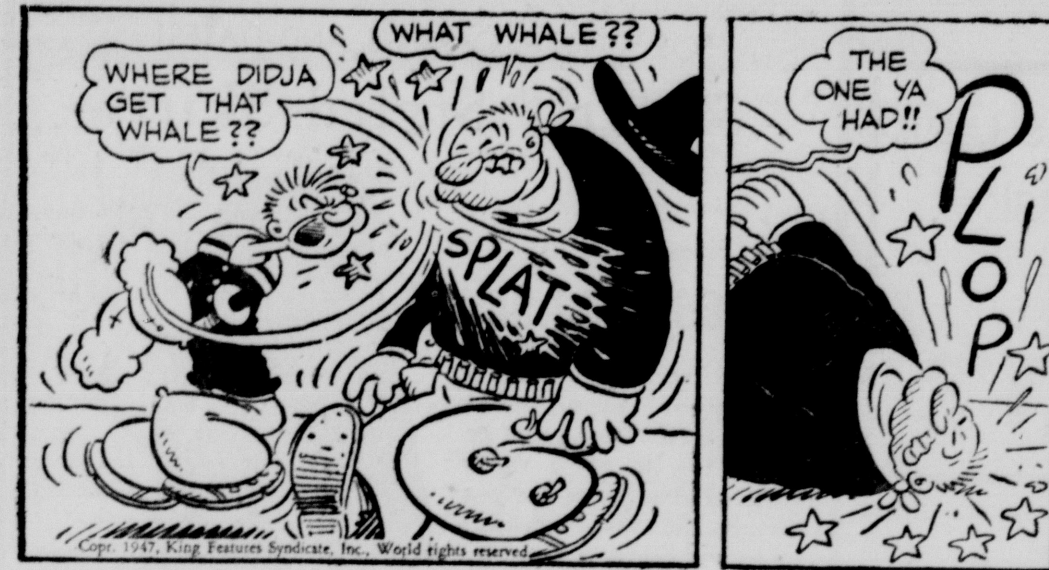

Eighteen dogs were entered in the derby stake. Winner was Communique's King Solomon, setter, owned and handled by Carl Bingham, Parkersburg, W. Va.; Second was Ranger's Commanche Tex, pointer, owned and handled by Leo McClure, Circleville; third, Tim Thomas, pointer, T. L. Huston, Stoutsville, owner and handler.

Trophies were awarded all winners. Highland Touchstone Dixie also won the first leg on the large Ralston Purina and John W. Eschelman and Sons rotating trophy which must be won twice to remain in permanent possession. Dixie, a black and white pointer, is six years old and has 17 wins to his credit.

March of Dimes fund drive is the material gainer as Ralph Edwards merrily rolls along with his contest on the identity of "Mrs. Hush" on "Truth or Consequences" Saturday nights. Listeners are deluging him with entries on "We should all support the March of Dimes because..." accompanied by contributions to the worthy cause. The latest count reveals that more than 400,000 letters have been received with a total contribution of $200,000. Edwards requests that letters be addressed to "Mrs. Hush, Hollywood, California," and are not to include a guess on her identity.

Sammy Kaye has just acquired the personal music library of Isham Jones, famous bandleader now retired. Jones has written many hit tunes, including "No Greater Love," which is currently being revived.

Jack Barry, originator - emcee of "Juvenile Jury," this week auditioned a new audience participation show with No. 1 model Candy Jones for a big sponsor. The package, which is

April Again Designated As Conservation Month In Ohio

CIVIC GROUPS, SCHOOLS JOIN IN OBSERVANCE

Conserving and Restoring Natural Resources To Be Stressed Next Month

Pickaway county residents next month will join in the annual observation of conservation month.

Governor Thomas J. Herbert's recent proclamation naming April as conservation month in Ohio, the week of April 21 to the 25th as conservation week in Ohio schools, and Friday, April 25, as Arbor and Bird Day, marks the eighth year that Ohio governors have asked the citizens of Ohio to observe such a proclamation which affords the opportunity of becoming better acquainted with the importance of conserving and restoring our natural heritage—the resources of soil, water, forests, minerals and wildlife.

Throughout the month, community organizations and civic groups will emphasize the necessity of giving serious thought to our natural resources and schools of the state will observe conservation week and Arbor Day with special observance programs and tree planting ceremonies as a tribute to this proclamation.

School teachers and officials will again this year be assisted in preparing and carrying out conservation week and Arbor Day programs by a promotion type project sponsored jointly by the Ohio division of conservation and natural resources and the state department of education. Handbooks filled with orientation materials including photographs, tree planting instructions, and suggested observance programs will be distributed to Ohio's 39,000 teachers early next month, together with appropriate blotters and bulletin board posters.

Newspapers, magazines, and the radio will join in the observance with special features, news items and programs, and in addition, envelope labels announcing conservation month will be used on mail leaving many state conservation agencies throughout the month.

GASOLINE PRICE WILL INCREASE ON WEDNESDAY

Some Circleville stations will increase the price of gasoline to motorists, Wednesday, while others reported that the price will not be raised. Still other stations reported that while they had not yet heard of an increase it was possible their prices might be changed to higher figures Wednesday.

The Standard Oil company announced Tuesday at Cleveland that gasoline prices at service stations throughout Ohio will be increased one and one-half cent per gallon effective Wednesday. That company reported that the increase is due to another 25-cent-per barrel advance in the price of crude oil which became effective Monday, plus substantial increases in other costs.

The prevailing prices of gasoline Tuesday in Circleville were 19 1/2 cents a gallon for regular and 21 1/2 cents for high-test. Thus the average prices Wednesday at stations making the price increase effective, will be 21 cents for regular and 23 for high-test.

MOORE'S STORE TAKEN OVER BY E. H. FLORIAN

Edgar H. Florian is the new proprietor of the Moore's of Ohio store, West Main street.

Mr. Florian, who comes to Circleville from Ashland, Ohio, where he operated a locker plant, purchased the store franchise from George Schaub and Herrell Midkiff.

Schaub and Midkiff opened the store here in October, 1945. They are former residents of Newark. Neither has announced his plans for the future.

Mr. Florian is a native of Richland county and claims Mansfield as his home community. He was associated with chain operations before operating a locker plant. He plans to move his wife and son here as soon as housing is available.

LOAFING LOUNGE FOR COWS IS RECOMMENDED

NEW YORK, March 11 — A "loafing lounge" for cows today was recommended to the nation's dairy farmers.

Dr. Fred W. Graves, senior state milk sanitation expert, said a cow that is allowed to loaf in a sheltered barn without having her freedom curbed produces more milk than her sister fastened to a stallion in a regular barn.
